Iroquois Indian Museum – Echoes of Tradition: Social Dancers – Haudenosaunee Dancers from Onondaga. Saturday, July 3. The Haudenosaunee Dancers perform Iroquois social dances as practiced in their small traditional community near Syracuse. Elegant and knowledgeable, leader Sherri Waterman-Hopper has traveled internationally as an artist and cultural speaker. The Dancers feature a core group of seasoned singer/musicians and talented and dedicated young adults. Pride in the culture and adherence to the traditions are the hallmarks of this disciplined troupe. Hopper is also a respected designer and seamstress who incorporates her knowledge of the construction and significance of traditional outfits into her presentations.

Echoes of Tradition: Onyota'a:ka Dancers from Oneida. Haudenosaunee dance group Onyota'a:ka Dancers from Oneida will offer presentations at the Museum throughout the day. Onota'a:ka was founded by Elder and Wolf Clan Mother Maisie Shenandoah for the purpose of cultural education, which has been carried on by Maisie's daughter Vicki. Onota'a:ka includes individuals from the Mohawk and Lenape nations as well as Oneida. This blended tribal composition is somewhat unusual, but demonstrates one of the mission of the group to raise awareness of the diversity of Native traditions.

Iroquois Indian Museum. Echoes of Tradition: Artist Demonstration - Marilynn Hill – the art of fingerweaving, Saturday July 24. Marilyn is Tuscarora Bear Clan and self-taught in the old style loom-less weaving technique popular in the 18th Century for sashes and garters. Finger weaving can involve more than 100 strands of wool yarn and often features zigzag, chevron, and W patterns. By 1945 this dexterous skill was so rarely practiced among the Haudenosaunee/Iroquois to be nearly extinct. While most men today purchase commercially produced sashes, Marilyn has spearheaded a small revival in this distinct tradition among young and old in her home community. Saturday's event will feature discussion and demonstration. Supported by a grant from New York State Council on the Arts.

September 4-5

39th Annual Iroquois Festival. Saturday, September 4 & Sunday, September 5. Celebrate Iroquois creativity and self-expression while enjoying a weekend filled with exciting events and activities. Our annual festival features an Art Market open exclusively to Iroquois artists. Both contemporary and traditional art forms are showcased. With this much talent in one place, visitors are assured of finding a treasure to take home. Other weekend highlights include traditional Iroquois social dances performed by The Sky Dancers from Six Nations Reserve in Ontario. You might even find yourself invited to the dance floor to participate! Onondaga storyteller Perry Ground returns with tales of daring feats and astounding adventures. Local wildlife rehabilitator Kelly Martin will be in attendance to discuss wildlife conservation in our bioregion and display a variety of wild animals including birds of prey. The Museum's archeology department will be available to help identify archeological finds and give demonstrations of flintknapping and other early technologies. There will be a children's area with art & traditional crafts activities, and an opportunity to sample some delectable Native foods from our Haudenosaunee food vendors.

September 12

Broome Animal Sanctuary Vegan Festival 2021. We are extremely happy to announce the 2021 BAS Vegan Festival hosted by Broome Animal Sanctuary. Come out and support vegan vendors who work tirelessly to make the world a happier, healthier and more compassionate planet for all beings. This event will be hosted at Broome Animal Sanctuary in Schoharie County, 315 SR 145, Middleburgh. Not only will we have a great line up of vendors, but attendees will have the opportunity to explore the sanctuary and see many of the residents up close and personal. Mark your calendars now. September 12 will be here before you know it. This is an admission free event, but we would like to suggest a $10 entry donation per person. 100% of all donations go to support the animals at Broome Animal Sanctuary. September 12, 10am – 4pm, Sunday at Broome Animal Sanctuary, 298 State Route 145, Middleburgh.
